Last month, our class carried out a survey about reading habits in our school. We asked 200 pupils. The results show that 60% of them read less than one book a year. Only 15% read more than five books. Most pupils say that they prefer social networks and video games. However, a few pupils told us that they read e-books on their phones. Our findings show that pupils need more time and more interesting books in the school library.
